UPDATE 25 — THE OPEN BETA, A NEW FACE AND NAVAL WAR

Parlamentum opens to everyone with nothing reset, seven new countries join the map, the whole game wears a new face, a story tutorial walks new citizens in, coastal regions can wage war by sea with ships from the new Light and Heavy Industry, levels and training are rebuilt, chat is live, and moderation moves to a credit record every player can read.

UPDATED 2026-10-10

Parlamentum opens its doors. Registration is free and needs no code, and nothing earned in the closed beta is reset. Seven countries join the playable world, the whole game is redrawn, the sea opens for war, and levels, training and the economy are rebalanced around a year of play.

EVERY BALANCE CHANGE, OLD → NEW

AREA	BEFORE	NOW
Level curve (total XP to stand at level n)	300·n^1.5 up to level 75, steeper pieces after: level 2 = 848, 5 = 3,354, 10 = 9,486, 50 = 106,066, 100 = 327,041	One smooth curve, 5.32·(n−1)^2.6986: level 2 = 5, 5 = 224, 10 = 2,000, 50 = 193,675, 100 = 1,292,209. Cheaper up to level 31, dearer from 32 on

Training time for stat point n	10·n·1.1^(n−1) s: point 50 = 14.8 h, 70 = 5.8 days, 100 = 145 days	0.2894·n^2.5 s, never under a second: point 50 = 1.4 h, 70 = 3.3 h, 100 = 8 h, 300 = 5.2 days. Cost (n gold), the Education cut and every bonus unchanged
Weapon burn per 10 energy	1 + ⌊level/10⌋	1 + ⌊level/8⌋ (ships burn on the same scale per 40 energy)

AREA	BEFORE	NOW
Upgrading a resource plant to level n	15·n gold	15·n gold and 50·n units of the plant's own output from storage. Factories, Light and Heavy Industry burn nothing
Closed-border upkeep, per owned region per minute	3 oil + 3 iron + 3 grain	2 grain + 1 oil
Storage shelves (base)	food / weapons / tickets T1–T5: 100/60/35/20/10; raws 500	150/90/52/30/15; raws 750; components 150; ships 30/18/10/6/3
Storage per player level	+5% per level above 1	+15% per level above 1
Region capacity	600 energy per supported worker a day	1,800
Founding a party	Level 5	Level 10
Founding a company	Level 3	Level 15
Sending a contract	Level 5	Level 20
Voting	1 day of citizenship	3 days
Golden Hours	18:00–20:00 UTC	17:00–18:00 UTC, one hour (×2 XP and ×2 energy regen unchanged)
Daily missions	3 a day from 5; 5 gold each + 5 gold bonus = 20 gold a day	Spend energy every day + 2 rotating from 8; with Premium 20 gold each + 20 gold bonus = 80 gold a day; without Premium 10 + 10 = 40 gold a day; 10 XP each unchanged
Supply drop (daily reward)	1 gold + 50 local	With Premium 20 gold + 100 local; without Premium 10 gold + 50 local
Contracts per day	10	10, or 20 with Premium
Production share (paid in kind)	Any percentage	At least 10%
Weekly press prizes	100 gold each	Newspaper of the Week 500 gold, Journalist of the Week 250 gold
Dictatorship law	The state is at least 30 days old	The sitting president won the state's last three presidential elections in a row (the

		two-thirds vote of every eligible voter is kept)
Account bans and offices	An account ban vacated the player's offices	No ban vacates offices; only the 15-day inactivity rule does
Development index	11 regions per index point	17 regions per index point
Market lot sizes	Raws 100, items 10	Raws 100, items 10, components 10, ships 1
Global market listings shown	The 10 cheapest per item	Up to 100 per item
Signing in	One day per device	Seven days, renewed while you play

OPEN BETA: THE GATES OPEN

- Free registration. No access or package code is needed. Registering takes three steps (identity, homeland, seal) in one window, with live password requirements and a show/hide eye on every password. An invite link fills in the referral code for you.
- No reset. Everything earned in the closed beta carries into the open beta.
- The closed beta's memberships are retired. Supporter, Patron and Founder are sold to no one anymore, as a gift neither. Holders keep their honour, and the Founders' wall stays.
- The Closed Beta Player medal. Every account opened before 10 October 2026, 17:00 UTC wears it on the profile's medal shelf.
- Time behind the countdown comes back. Premium time and convoy structures that ran down while the countdown held everyone out (4 October 18:00 to 10 October 17:00 UTC) are given back to the minute. The presidential elections it cut short open again at the opening for 24 hours, and the parliamentary election it cut moves to the opening.
- A welcome letter from the Admin account greets every new citizen, with the Discord invite.
- The public pages speak open beta. The Game, How to Play, Open Beta, Contact and Founders are rebuilt, and The World replaces Packages: the live fronts, headlines, the cheapest global asks, the largest nations and the leading citizens. Nothing is sold on the public site; purchases happen only in the Treasury, inside the game. Terms, Privacy and Refund are rewritten for the open beta.
- The Treasury. The shop is an open treasury: your gold and Premium on its painting, a Premium hall with its privileges in plain sight, bundles as war chests with their saving, and gold from the mint with gold per dollar. A limited Open Beta Pack (6 months of Premium, 10,000 gold and 2,000 of each of the ten currencies) sits above the bundles until 12 October 2026, 17:00 UTC.

SEVEN NEW COUNTRIES, AND REGION PROTECTION

- Seven countries open: Canada (13 regions), Mexico (27), Greece (6), Malaysia (8), Syria (3), Bulgaria (3) and Singapore (3) — 63 regions.
- Three more independent regions: Morobe–Madang (Papua New Guinea), Viqueque–Lautém (Timor-Leste) and Greenland.
- Every new region opens independent. A state forms when it has 5 citizens; parties, laws and the local market need a state.
- Playable regions: 103 → 169. The development index ranks playable regions in tenths, so each index point now holds 17 regions instead of 11.
- Region protection. A region can stand under a shield for a set time. While it stands, no war can be declared on it — by land, by sea or by a rebellion. The rule is checked when a war law is proposed and again when it executes, so a law in voting fails if its target is shielded by then. A protected region may still declare a war itself; its own shield falls the moment that war starts. The map draws a shield on the region, and the hover card and the region panel say until when. Every newly opened region starts under an 8-day shield.
- Resource deposits. Resource bonuses now follow 100 real-world deposits across the world (Saudi oil, Pilbara iron, Chilean copper, the Corn Belt …), from +10% to +30%: oil 20, grain 15, timber 14, iron 13, coal 13, copper 13, cotton 12. Every other region keeps its resource type with no bonus. The Resources map mode shows all 100.

A NEW FACE

- The header is built around your own pennant: the navigation on two wings, the UTC clock and your city, your purse with gold first, and shelves for messages, contracts, the bell and the account menu. Golden Hours, a live event and the supply crate appear on the left while they matter. Hover the pennant for your level, energy, XP and stats.
- One palette and one voice across the game, with frames in quiet gold and Oswald as the display face. Dates and numbers follow your language everywhere.
- Feedback rises from the bottom-left as a toast. Buttons never grey out: a refusal tells you what is wrong.

- Hover cards are never cut off by their box, and a finger taps them open.
- A loading screen that teaches: on a long wait, a game tip card.
- The chat dock sits at the bottom-right of every game page, opens on your language room, counts what you missed per room and shows "N new messages" instead of yanking you down. The energy fill button rides with it.
- Every page is rebuilt as a game console: Settings (one pane at a time, language tiles with flags, photo and biography under Identity), referrals with a reward track, notifications in six categories with unread counts, the profile as a character sheet with a service record and a medal shelf, messages and contracts, the help desk (with a 1–5 star rating on a closed ticket), the country page, statistics, the markets and the exchange, jobs and companies, the press (a front page, mastheads, a reading page and a writing desk), the inventory and the convoy, parties, parliament, elections, and the war room as an open battlefield with a painting that follows the war.
- Cancelling a flight asks first: you stay where you took off and the ticket is not refunded. The signed-out window tells an ended session from a lost connection.

HEADQUARTERS: THE DASHBOARD

- Twelve shortcut keys across the top; a key lights while its page wants you (a war you are in, an election you have not voted in, the parliament's floor). Under them, three fixed columns: you (your sheet, stats and training, the pack and the convoy), your day (the shift, the chat and the press) and the world (the map preview, your region, the day's missions and the clock). On a phone they become one stack.
- The citizen card wears your country's flag, with bread as five fixed keys and your wallet under it.
- The clock lists every timer the game runs for you — the supply drop (claimable there), energy, training, drinks, Golden Hours, the live event, a flight, auto sessions, elections, law votes, a war, the convoy — ready rows first.
- The work bar shows the energy a shift takes, and the Auto segment turns it violet while a session runs.
- Achievements have their own page; the missions card leads there with an "N ready" chip.

THE MAP

- Terrain relief, crisp at every zoom, and borders that carry each nation's colour on its own side.
- Names run along each nation's land, with capitals and county names.
- A hover card, and a spotlight on the chosen nation.

- Wars are drawn as tapered arrows with plaques; rebellions get a torch, protected regions a shield, and naval wars a sea lane.
- Resource deposits are medallions, and "You are here" is a pin.
- The city behind the panels: the region panel and the dashboard's region card show the city, from a ruin to a capital, by its City Score.

THE CHRONICLE: A STORY TUTORIAL

- The 20 tutorial steps are retold by the Chronicler as five acts and an epilogue, each act opening with a painting and a letter. A journal keeps your Chronicle.
- The Chronicler's mark is a gold ring on what to press, and hints name the real places.
- The market steps teach without forcing a trade, and a real purchase or listing still counts. The rewards are unchanged.

EVERY NUMBER TELLS HOW MUCH, WHY AND WHEN

- The energy bar says how fast it fills, why, and when it is full. A shift says what it will produce, why, and what you keep.
- Every training time and flight time says why it is that long; the training confirm names the bonuses that shortened it.
- Storage shelves say why they hold what they hold; region capacity says when the crowding penalty ends.
- XP, bread, max energy and the daily drop explain themselves.
- The strike quote now carries every multiplier the strike lands with, and the training preview quotes exactly the duration the server sets.

NAVAL WAR, SHIPS AND FOUR INDUSTRY CLASSES

A land war needs a shared border. Now any coastal region can wage war by sea.

Four industry classes.

- Resource Plant → Factory → Light Industry → Heavy Industry.

- Light Industry (250 gold) makes three tierless components: Construction Materials = 5 Iron + 5 Timber, Fuel = 5 Coal + 5 Oil, Electronics = 5 Copper + 5 Cotton.
- Heavy Industry is the Shipyard (500 gold, at its chosen tier). It stands on a coast only and moves only to another coast.
- Light Industry and Shipyards are multi-input plants: you feed and empty each input by name, a shift is capped by the scarcest input, and closing the plant hands the inputs back.

Ships. A ship is worth four same-tier weapons, in damage and in raw cost. A ship takes construction materials / electronics / fuel:

TIER	T1	T2	T3	T4	T5
Construction / Electronics / Fuel	2/1/1	4/2/2	6/4/4	12/6/6	20/10/10

Components and ships live everywhere items do: storage (new Fleet and Components shelves), markets (components in lots of 10, ships one at a time), contracts and export bans.

Coasts. 659 regions are coastal: 650 on the open sea and 9 on the Caspian. The region panel shows a Coastal chip. Any coast can reach any coast on the same water at any distance; the Caspian fights only the Caspian.

A naval war has two phases, 24 hours each.

1. The landing is fought with ships only, on both sides, and nothing is razed. Ships burn at 1 + ⌊level/8⌋ per 40 energy, and a landing strike spends whole 40-energy blocks only.
2. If the attackers end the landing strictly ahead, the assault opens at once and is fought with weapons, exactly like a land war (capture, capital loss, the loser's home region devastated). The attackers start it with a head start of half their winning margin: ⌊(attackers' damage − defenders' damage) / 2⌋. Otherwise the landing is repelled and nothing is razed.

A naval war is declared by law, "By sea": a staging coast of the declaring state, then a target on the same water. The war pages show the phase, its countdown, the head start and a report of both phases. The map draws a thin sea lane with a warship halfway, and an anchor marks a naval war everywhere the crossed swords mark a land war. An Auto Mode session started in a landing strikes with ships and stops when the landing ends; you start it again for the assault with a weapon tier.

LEVELS, TRAINING AND THE ECONOMY

The fastest players of the closed beta reached level 125 in a month, while stats walled near 70. Levels and training are rebuilt so that the most active players reach about level 200, and about 300 in every stat, in a year.

- One smooth level curve. The first levels come within minutes; every next one costs a little more, with no seam where the step jumps.
- Your level is recounted from your XP. XP itself does not change. Most players went up; veterans came down (the old level 125 is the new 74). A player the recount moves down is paid 100 gold for every level lost, with a notice explaining it. Level bounties pay again on a re-climb. Max energy and convoy slots follow the recounted level; a convoy structure already standing runs to its end.
- Training without a wall. The 100th point takes about 8 hours and the 300th about 5 days, before your Education and other cuts.
- Weapons burn on the new level scale, 1 + ⌊level/8⌋ per 10 energy. The recount had cut every veteran's burn — and with it their damage — by about a fifth; this puts it back.
- A resource plant's upgrade burns its own output: reaching level n takes 50·n units of the plant's product from its storage, on top of the gold. The desk shows the burn under the upgrade button.
- Closed borders cost less: 2 grain + 1 oil per owned region per minute.
- Bigger shelves: every storage base ×1.5, and +15% per level.
- Region capacity ×3, so a busy region no longer drains its pool in hours.
- Level gates on the new curve: a party needs level 10, a company level 15, a contract level 20. Existing parties, companies and contracts are untouched.
- Golden Hours run 17:00–18:00 UTC every day, from the open beta's first day.

Why the two sinks: through the closed beta the price of raws fell from about 0.59 to 0.13 gold, following the gold minted against the raws traded. The plant-upgrade burn and the weapon burn put raws back to use, so their price falls more slowly and less of the world's output sits unsold.

ECONOMY AND MARKETS

- Daily missions are harder and pay up to four times more. Every day has Spend energy (five full bars, on shifts or war strikes, Auto Mode included). Two more rotate from eight — train, eat your whole bread ration, 10 purchases, sell 30 units, an FX exchange, react to 5 articles, 5 chat messages, 3 drink refills — and the same one never comes two days running. With Premium each pays 20 gold and all three add 20 more (80 a day); without Premium, half (40 a day).
- The supply drop pays 20 gold + 100 local currency with Premium, 10 gold
    - 50 local without.

- Premium sends 20 contracts a day (everyone else 10). The shop's Premium window lists the doubled daily rewards and the contracts.
- Edit a listing (price and stock) from My listings, on the local and global market, once every 5 minutes. Buyers pay the price they saw: a listing repriced meanwhile is refused, never charged.
- Returns fit your storage: a cancel returns what fits and leaves the rest listed; an expired listing returns what fits and keeps the rest on the market for another 72 hours, with a notice.
- The global market shows every listing, up to 100 per item.
- Storage and shares. A full storage no longer eats a shift: a production-share shift is sized to what your storage can take, and with no room at all it is refused before any energy is spent. Production shares start at 10%.
- Jobs. The job board sorts by the highest wage an employer can actually pay, and an unpaid shift tells the employer what it cost.

POLITICS, THE CABINET AND THE PRESS

- A dictatorship needs a president the people chose three times in a row. The Change Regime law requires that the sitting president won the state's last three presidential elections in a row; the law form shows the streak. The two-thirds vote of every eligible voter stays.
- A vote belongs to the seat. A removed MP's ballot no longer counts; the seat's new holder casts its vote.
- One parliamentary election at a time: an early election cannot be called while one is open.
- Voting needs 3 days of citizenship; moving home inside the same country keeps the clock.
- The cabinet sees every work permit. The president and the interior minister see each active permit of their state and can revoke one. The holder keeps the job but cannot work shifts there until a new permit or citizenship.
- The president can use the foreign desk (alliances, embargoes, renewals) when no foreign minister sits.
- The press. The weekly prizes grow to 500 gold for the Newspaper of the Week and 250 gold for the Journalist of the Week, awarded every Monday 00:00 UTC. Both badges sit on the profile, with how many times each was won.

THE CREDIT RECORD

Moderation moves to a credit record every player can read.

- Your credit. Every player holds up to 100 credit. It grows back by 1 at 00:00 UTC every day, never above 100, and not while the account is banned.
- Thresholds. When a deduction takes your credit to a threshold or below, its penalty starts by itself. When one deduction crosses several, only the heaviest applies.

CREDIT AT OR BELOW	PENALTY
90	Chat mute 1 h
80	Chat mute 12 h + DM ban 6 h
70	Chat mute 1 day + DM ban 12 h
60	Chat mute 3 days + DM ban 36 h + article ban 1 day
50	Chat mute 7 days + DM ban 84 h + article ban 2 days
40	Account ban 1 day
30	Account ban 3 days
20	Account ban 7 days
10	Account ban 30 days
0	Permanent account ban

- Suggested deductions. A moderator decides the points; the catalogue suggests them: provocation 2, asking for personal information 5, light swearing 2, heavy swearing 5, swearing at or insulting staff 10, spam 2, advertising other games 5, provoking the community 20, racism 30, demeaning religious or national values 30, swearing at or insulting them 40, commercial advertising and fraud 100.
- The Record page (gear menu → Record) shows your credit, the ladder with your place on it, the penalties in force, every deduction and the rules. Every deduction reaches you as a notice with its reason and an Appeal link. A revoked deduction gives the credit back and lifts its penalties.
- A ban no longer takes your offices; only the 15-day inactivity rule does.

YOUR ACCOUNT

- Delete my account (Settings → Security). Confirm with your e-mail and password; every open session is signed out, and signing in again cancels the request. Left alone, the account falls inactive after 15 days and is then erased for good.

- Staying signed in. A sign-in lasts seven days on each device and renews itself while you play. After a week away, every page takes you to the sign-in form.
- Registration safety. A human check guards the registration code; most people never see it. When the mail provider refuses a verification e-mail, you can ask again at once.
- Your language room. Switching the language from the site's menu while signed in switches your account too, so the chat's language room follows.

LIVE CHAT, AND A GAME READY FOR A CROWD

- Chat is live: a message appears for everyone in the room about half a second after it is sent. A line you send shows at once, a refused line comes back to the box, and a long message wraps inside its bubble.
- A country room. Every citizen has a Country room beside the global, language and party rooms. Only that country's citizens read and write there, and it clears at 00:00 UTC like the others.
- Team announcements can pop up on your screen for a set time, not only wait in the notification bell. Close it once and it stays in the bell.
- Ready for a crowd: pages and the header load faster, and the server answers "busy, try again" instead of hanging when it is full.
- During a flight, energy refills at the pace of the city you took off from, until you land. Auto work and auto fight refill with the convoy's Field Hospital bonus.
- War-end notices reach every fighter and the active citizens of both sides.

FIXES

- Commas are decimal points. "1,95" typed on a phone keyboard reads as 1.95 in prices, FX rates, minting, contract amounts, taxes and wages; it used to become 195.
- Your language for everyday refusals: not enough gold or energy, in flight, wrong region, no job, the bread limit, a full convoy, a mission not finished and some fifty more messages used to arrive in English.
- The jobs board lists companies in independent regions.
- The day's missions update at once after a shift, a meal, a drink, a training, a strike, a market buy or an FX trade.
- The Chronicle's "Work a shift" counts a shift worked anywhere, not only from the dashboard.

- Cancelling a flight that has already landed lands you; it used to keep you at the airport you left, ticket spent.
- Becoming a citizen retires your work permit for that country, freeing one of your two permit slots.
- Flights over an hour count down as h:mm:ss.
- The train button stays off until you hold the gold for it.
- Phones: report and remove flags are visible on touch screens; market names no longer cut to "Raw Co..."; FX order rows wrap; the Light and Heavy Industry input rows line up; the notification panel spans the screen.
- The shop: a payment window that never opens (an ad blocker, a payment outage) frees the button after 20 seconds with a message.
- Companies: the founding form quotes a ticket factory's real oil cost; wages show in the company's own pay currency; taking goods out when your storage is full says how much stayed in the company.
- Convoys: two deliveries at the same moment can no longer overshoot a structure's bill.
- Politics: a party's seat count in Statistics is the real sum; you can apply again to a party that once turned you down; a member who leaves or is removed drops off the presidential ballot; a law proposal in another country no longer blocks you in a new one; a tied presidential ballot counts toward a dictatorship only for the candidate it seated.
- Auto Mode stops, with the reason, when Premium ends, when the employer cannot pay the wage, or when your shelf is full.
- The press: an editor invitation opens the newspaper that sent it.
- A refused mission or achievement claim shows as an error in your language, and a lifted account ban lets the player back in at once.
- The Book was checked page by page against the game in all six languages, wears the new design and logo, and adds pages on getting started, reading the map, the shop and Premium, and your account and settings.
